Why should I mediate?

- Mediation is a fast, cost effective, highly successful way of resolving disputes.
- Recent statistics show around 80% of those attending mediation reach a settlement. It is much quicker and cheaper than going to court.
- Mediators can help you to find long-term solutions that work for you and your family.
- You retain control of the outcomes and can make decisions in a confidential and safe environment.

How it works?

Whether you are recently separated, have been separated for some years or already in the court process, wish to see your grandchildren, need to resolve issues around childcare arrangements, improve communication, and reduce conflict, our fully accredited mediators can work with you to resolve matters and help you to find solutions that work for you. There are several stages in the process.

- Intake or Assessment Meeting (MIAM)
- Optional Pre-mediation Coaching Sessions
- Mediation Sessions
- End of Mediation
- Child Inclusive Mediation

How much does it cost?

There are two ways of accessing mediation; via Legal Aid or paying privately. More clients than ever before are eligible for legal aid and in which case mediation will be FREE for you. If you do not qualify for legal aid yourself, but the other person does, the cost of your initial assessment meeting (MIAM) will also be FREE for you, as will your first joint mediation session with the other person.

Our fixed fees are inclusive of VAT with no hidden costs for session notes, letters and court forms. Our fees are stated on our website.

Am I entitled to Legal Aid?

You may be eligible for FREE mediation if you are assessed as being eligible for legal aid[†]. Legal costs for court proceedings typically cost a minimum of £3,000 each.

Even if you are not eligible for legal aid, mediation is a much cheaper option than going to court. All our MIAM fees are also inclusive of court forms, where applicable.

Why choose Family Mediation?

Family Mediation can help you to resolve conflict and issues following a separation, as well as other family disputes.

It can help both parties focus the needs of the children involved including future arrangements, how decisions and responsibilities for the children will be handled. It can help with financial discussions, how to manage separation, divorce or dissolution of a civil partnership. It can also help with how you will communicate with one another moving forwards. It can help with changes of name and / or parental responsibility, and also help grandparents or stepparents to make arrangements to see the children.
